GERMANS ATTEMPT GAIN

But Counter Attacks of the French Throw Back the Attacking Force.

(Special to The Herald)
Paris, April 3.—Terrific fighting took place throughout the night at Verdun on the Vaux-Daumont front. The Germans are attempting to make further progress in Collette wood, southwest of Fort Duvion, but counter attacks from the French appear to be throwing back the attacking forces. The present indications are that the Germans are resolved to battle their way through to Verdun, on the east bank of the Meuse. The official communiqué states no infantry action occurred on the west bank during the night.

AERIAL RAID OVER SCOTLAND

German Zeppelins Drop Bombs Upon
Coast Towns—More Air Attacks Expected

(Special to The Herald)
London, April 3.—Further Zeppelin raids, one Sunday night on the coast of Scotland and the northern and southeastern counties of England, and another Saturday night over the north east coast of England, have been officially announced by the war office. In the Saturday night attack at least sixteen persons were killed and more than 100 others injured by the bombs dropped by airmen. With Friday night's casualty list of four killed and 67 injured, the aggregate is much greater than in previous aerial attacks this year since Jan. 31, when 67 were killed and 117 injured. The war office has given out no figures relative to casualties in the raid last night. The official report says: "Two airships approached the north east coast Saturday night. Only one crossed the coast. The other turned back. For the present we know that 15 persons were killed and about 100 injured. Eight dwelling houses were demolished and a serious fire was caused in a French polishing shop. "A Zeppelin raid took place Sunday night when the coast of Scotland and the northern and southeastern counties of England were attacked. "Bombs were dropped at various places. No details are available. "Confirmation of recent reports that the latest Zeppelin raids over England were for the purpose of locating the British grand fleet is seen in the fact that the coast of Scotland was attacked by the Zeppelins which took part in the raid last night. Sunday's night attack, the third in three nights, will be followed by still other air raids soon, it is believed. The Zeppelins are now being equipped with a new kind of searchlight of high power and illuminating bombs.

From Germany.

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, April 3.—Ambassador Gerard at Berlin cabled today that he would very shortly have a final answer from the German foreign office as to whether a German submarine attacked the Channel steamer Sussex in the English channel recently when 25 American citizens were on board.

When Box 19 called in near midnight the whistle worked about as well as it has at any time lately—by not sounding at all.

MORE SUPPLIES FOR ARMY

American Column in Mexico
Receives Trainload Sent Over Mexican R. R.

(Special to The Herald)
San Antonio, April 3.—Maj. Gen. Funston announced today that a trainload of supplies sent from Juarez over the Mexico Northwestern railway had reached the base of the American expedition in Mexico. "More supplies are on the way," said Gen. Funston. "The U. S. army is not officially using the railway but the Mexican merchants at Casas Grandes are doing a 'land office' business." The American commander had no further information with reference to Villa, having heard nothing from Gen. Pershing for 46 hours, except acknowledgment of messages sent into Mexico. "I know nothing definitely," said Funston, "but apparently Villa has slipped his halter. Or, like my family dog, slipped his collar and crawled under the gate. Five trucks have been added to the supply train plying between the main base at Casas Grandes and the sub-base at El Valle. All these trucks are heavily guarded.

DEAD AT 101 YEARS

Mrs. Whitehouse of Rochester
Probably Oldest Woman in Strafford County.

Rochester, April 3.—Mrs. Mary A. Whitehouse, the oldest woman in this city, if not in Strafford county, died at her home on Wakefield street after an illness of three weeks at the age of 101 years, 3 months. Up to her illness she enjoyed good health, doing a good deal of traveling on cars and taking a daily walk about town.

Mrs. Whitehouse was the daughter of Col. John and Abigail (Torr) McDuffee. She leaves two nephews, Geo. H. and George W. McDuffee of this city, and two nieces, Mrs. Abbie McDuffee Chase of Rochester and Mrs. Annie Brown of Exeter. The funeral will be held at her home on Wednesday afternoon.

MANY LOST IN FIRE

The 16th Story Morse Building in New York Swept by Flames.

(Special to The Herald)
New York, April 3.—Many lives are reported lost in a fire that today swept the 16-story Morse building on the northeast corner of Nassau and Beekman streets. The fire started in the building at 16 Beekman street and had rapidly communicated to the old building adjoining at 140 Nassau street. Flames enveloped the entire building from the fifth floor to the roof.

KNOCKED DOWN BY RUNAWAY

John Parks Lies Critically Ill at Portsmouth Hospital With a Fractured Skull

John Parks lies critically ill at the Portsmouth hospital with a fractured skull, as the result of being knocked down and run over by a runaway horse and team in Market Square about 10:30 o'clock this morning. A horse attached to a light, one-seated team owned by Thomas Flynn became frightened while standing in Hester's stable on Fleet street, and dashed up Congress street and plunged madly across Market Square heading for Pleasant street. At this time, Mr. Parks, who is an elderly gentleman, was crossing the street. Despite shouted warnings from lookers-on, the unfortunate man stepped directly in front of the rushing animal which by this time had broken into a gallop. The descending front hoof of the animal struck the man and bore him heavily to the ground. The horse's hoofs struck him on the head and the carriage passed over his body. By this time a crowd had collected and ready hands including Captain Harding, retired, of the Coast Guard service, and Samuel Powell, picked up the injured man and placed him in an automobile which took him immediately to the hospital. Dr. S. T. Ladd, who happened to be upon the scene, jumped into the machine and rendered first aid to Mr. Parks. After passing over Parks, the horse dashed up onto the sidewalk and was brought to a stop in front of the First National bank.

WILSON BACK AT WORK

Resumes Consideration of the Submarine Dispute With Germany.

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, April 3.—Back from his two day river, bay and ocean trip on the Mayflower, President Wilson today resumed consideration of the policy he will pursue to bring to a head the latest submarine dispute. He was said to be very certain that a decision as to just what action will be taken will be reached this week, but he received word soon after he reached the White house that the state department has little further evidence bearing on the wrecking of the Sussex. The case is expected to be made the main issue in dealing with Germany.

ICE HOUSE TAKES FIRE FROM SPARKS

Firemen Answer Call for First
Brush Fire of the Season.

The combination engine of the fire department answered its first call for a brush fire this forenoon on a still alarm at 11:30. The fire was on the property of James Harvey on Boyd road and the timely arrival of the apparatus saved the ice house. Sparks from the fire caused a lively blaze on the roof of the building which took the firemen nearly two hours to entirely extinguish. The engine had a hard run through the mud but made excellent time considering the condition of the roads.

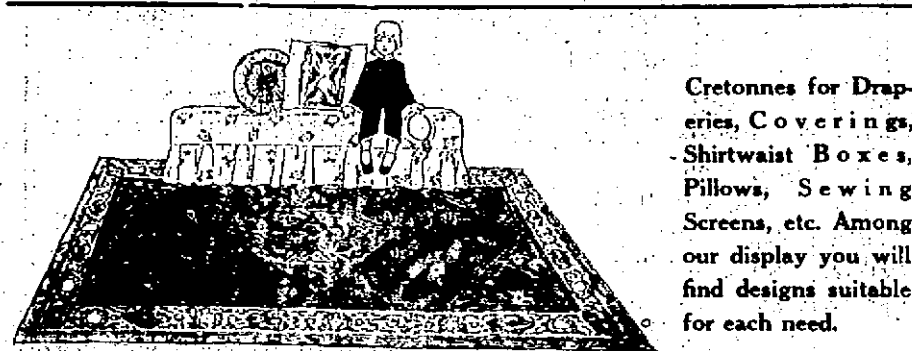

DEAD AT KITTY POINT

Lewis Edwin Rice of South Framingham, for several years a locomotive engineer on the Boston and Albany railroad, died on Sunday afternoon at Kitty Point as the result of a shock sustained only a few days ago. Deceased was 55 years of age and until forced to retire owing to ill health, had a train between Boston and New York. He is survived by a wife, two sons and a daughter. Interment will take place in South Framingham on Wednesday afternoon.

COUNTRY ENTIRELY FREE OF FOOT-AND-MOUTH DISEASE

Long Fight Against Stock Plague Ended by Removal of All Quarantine

Washington, D. C., April 2.—The long fight against the foot-and-mouth disease is over. The Secretary of Agriculture has issued an order which on March 31 removes all foot-and-mouth quarantines and restrictions against the shipment and movement of live stock. The order signed specifically removes the quarantine from a small territory in Christian County, Illinois, the last area which was under suspicion. Along with the removal of this local quarantine, the various Federal orders restricting shipment of cattle are rescinded, so that dealers can now ship their cattle as before the first quarantine was imposed.

Upon notification that the United States is free from the disease, all foreign governments which have placed embargoes on American cattle are expected to remove these embargoes, so that cattle raisers will then be able to resume shipments to these foreign countries.

The magnitude of the work of eradication and control carried on by farmers, shippers, and the State and Federal Governments is shown by the fact that before controlled, the disease had gained a temporary footing in 22 states and the District of Columbia. The disease appeared and was controlled in 260 different counties.

The importance to the stock raising industry of eradicating foot-and-mouth disease may be judged from the results of this plague in Denmark, where the disease appeared at about the same time that it broke out in the United States. The area of Denmark is approximately equal to that of the three New England states—Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Rhode Island. It is, however, a great dairy country, and it has been estimated that the losses in milk in one year caused by the foot-and-mouth disease have amounted to approximately one-third of the total cost of eradicating the pestilence in 22 states of this country. The Danish authorities were unable to carry out their former policy of slaughter, and were compelled to resort to such measures of control as could be established by quarantines and other restrictions.

As a result of better understanding between the State and National Governments, representatives of the Department believe that many of the obstacles which confronted the authorities in the past outbreak would not be encountered in dealing with any future occurrence of the disease. The veterinarians, however, will not abate their watchfulness for some time. Examination of animals and animal products offered for import will continue to be unusually strict. The department, moreover, particularly urges all farmers and cattle handlers to notify their state veterinarians and the Department of any suspicious cases of sore mouth combined with lameness in their animals. Those in charge of the eradication work are confident that this disease is wiped out, but they wish to use every precaution to detect and control any sporadic cases that may develop in remote districts.

CAPTURE OF VILLA AS FAR AWAY AS EVER

El Paso, April 3.—Francisco Villa, the leader of the Mexican bandit forces, is today as far from capture as he has been since the raid on Columbus, according to men here who know the present operations are taking place. It is their belief that he has escaped Doña's cavalry and has sought safety in one of his mountain fastnesses. Many doubt even the story that he has been wounded although the reports received here on Sunday did much to confirm this as true.

MEXICAN LOSS PLACED AT SIXTY KILLED.

El Paso, Texas, Sunday.—Amplified

reports of the battle on Wednesday at Guerrero were summarized today as follows:

Villa lost sixty men killed, just twice the number first stated in General Pershing's report. The American loss remains at four wounded. The bandits, numbering about five hundred, were attacked by no more than four hundred of Colonel Duda's Seventh cavalry. The attack was made from three sides.

Pancho Villa himself, wounded in the battle or during his occupation of the town some days previously, escaped in a vehicle into the mountain passes. It was reported in official Mexican government advices that his leg had been amputated, to save his life from a poisonous condition caused by the wound. Just after his rout at Guerrero Villa or his men killed three Americans, a British and a German subject at Minaca, a village near Guerrero. Two other Americans are missing from Minaca. Reports today showed that Colonel Duda's victory over the Villa bandits at Guerrero had been more decisive than at first reported. Several Villa soldiers were taken prisoners and are being sent north toward the border along the American chain of outposts leading to Columbus, N. M.

Villa in Serious Plight
Pancho Villa himself is known to be in a worse plight than at first expected. A despatch from General Carranza's headquarters at Queretaro said that the Minister of War, General Alvaro Obregón, had been informed that Villa, that a leg as the result of one of the Guerrero encounters. It previously was reported that the bandit had been wounded in the leg and hip. The message received by General Obregón is believed to be authentic, since it came from the Municipal President of Temascalapa, a village in Chihuahua near the scene of the battle.

It also was learned today that Villa escaped from Guerrero in a carriage or wagon. He was unable to ride in the saddle. This, it is believed, will make easier the pursuit by the American cavalrymen, since the wheels of the vehicle will leave a telltale trail which horses' hoofs do not make. But it is not doubted that if Villa once arrives in the mountain retreats about Guerrero, which probably is in the wildest and roughest part of Chihuahua State, he will be comparatively safe unless betrayed by some assassin. The bandit is admired by many of the small ranches of the mountain district. He is the Robin Hood of Western Chihuahua.

BOXING NOTES

MICKY BROWN TO MEET SHUBERT ON WEDNESDAY.

Boston, April 2.—Mickey Brown the clever little Midden lightweight will have the greatest chance of his career next Wednesday night when he meets Al Shubert of New Bedford in a 12-round bout upon the result of which hinges the New England championship. Shubert has made rapid strides during the past season and his recent 12-round draw with Johnny Brito brought him the biggest attention he has ever had from the sports.

Brito considered the champion of the world in the class by virtue of his defeat of Kid Williams on a foul was considered lucky at the time to secure an even break with the New Bedford White. It is the plan of both these little fellows to force either Kid Williams or Brito into a meeting with them and they realize that their only chance is for some one of them to demonstrate a marked advantage over one another.

In the two meetings they have had, the referee's have found it hard to select a winner, a draw resulting after some great fighting.

Brown the cleverest of the two is working hard for a rough and ready

EVERHART VS DRYDEN IN BIG MATCH TONIGHT

One of the biggest gatherings of wrestling fans Portsmouth has seen is expected to be present in Freeman's hall tonight when Bob Everhart of Brooklyn, N. Y., and "Farmer" Bill Dryden of Portsmouth clash onto the mat for their fifth battle to determine which of the two is the better man in the game. The match will decide if youth and strength are superior to experience and should settle the question for all times as to who has the better right to meet the big fellows. This will be the fifth meeting between Dryden and Everhart and is a return match asked for by the Brooklyn wrestler who claimed that he was not in condition when he lost to Bill in this city a month or more ago. It will be some battle, both men determined to put up the exhibition of their lives as it means everything to the winner.

In the many times they have met Everhart had the better of the argument, although from his work here on his last visit he appeared far from being the terror he was when he first showed against Bill. Bill won in straight falls the last time, Everhart appearing much weaker than formerly and although he put up a stiff game fight, he was not the equal of the local boy.

In their first meeting several years ago Everhart won after breaking Bill's shoulder by a hammerlock. The hammerlock has always been his strongest hold. In the second meeting Everhart won in straight falls. The third time the men faced each other it was very apparent that Dryden was improving a great deal and although Everhart won, Bill succeeded in giving an excellent account of himself and getting one fall out of the older wrestler.

When they first met Bill was practically a novice at the game while Bob Everhart was one of the big ones, with many years of experience and many hard fought battles to his credit. But since then Bill has been gathering a lot of experience while Everhart has been battling against the men who gets them all—Father Time. Bill's youth and strength stood him in good stead at their last meeting and although Everhart managed to hang a hammerlock on his opponent several times, the hold was always broken and in the end he took the count. The lovers of the game who are on deck tonight are in for a great exhibition, as both men are timed and trained to the minute.

battle and is perfecting a series of blows that he feels will check the aggressive rushes of the visitor. The bout is one of the star attractions in the class for little men and is second for importance to those that were fought when Al Delmont and Jimmy Walsh were fighting for local distinction. These little men vie in almost every way with the former and the friends of Delmont and Walsh have taken sides with the new favorites in the bantamweight class.

Shubert is naturally a great favorite throughout New England. He has not lost a decision in over a year and has fought some stiff men in and out of his class during that time. It is almost the same with Brown. The latter dropped a decision to Eddie Campbell but the bout was so satisfying that the fans forgot all about the slight margin in his favor that Campbell won the bout. Brown gave as good as he received and in the opinion of many, never should have been decided against. The question now is which of the two little men have improved enough to show a superiority over the other. Both claim that they will win sure, which would tend them right up in front for a meeting with the champion of the class and it is with this end in sight that they will arrive their utmost to earn the verdict that will give them the chance.

Running a close second for interest is the semifinal bout between Joe Connolly, the Charlestown welterweight and Al Reddy of Chelsea. They will meet in an eight round bout and if the contest lasts that long it will cause some surprise amongst the followers of both boxers. As an amateur Connolly was a sensation. He won the greatest number of his bouts inside of the three round limit and has come to the front like the rush of the 20th Century Flyer. And when he hits Connolly strikes with equally as much force. Only a very few boxers have been able to withstand his aggressive attack.

If the Charlestown boxer gets up with as good success in the pro-rank as he did in the amateur class, Bunker Hill followers of boxing will begin to prepare for another welterweight title holder something they have not had since Honey Mellody retired from the fighting game.

Al Reddy who will oppose Connolly in his professional debut will take the place against the Bunker Hill boy with a little more experience as a professional boxer. Reddy since appearing in the big tent time has done remarkably well and it only needs for him to follow out his hand for the fans to see one of the warmest struggles for new made honors witnessed between local talent. Reddy has that confidence and it will take everything that Connolly has to dispose of the idea that he is a better boxer than the Chelsea man. It looks like a great fight and will probably come up to every expectation.

There will be two six round preliminary bouts between local men that the directors will announce soon. Popular agreement will continue to prevail.

ENGINEER'S STORY OF THE GREAT BOSTON FIRE

Late Charles Manent of this City Writes of Putting Out Fire of the Spire of the Old South Church.

Although much has been written of late relative to the saving of The Old South Church in Boston at the fire in 1872, the following letter, written by the engineer of Kearsarge No. 3, the late Charles Manent, may prove interesting. This letter was clipped from one of the Boston Newspapers at the time it was printed in 1890.

BOSTON'S GREAT FIRE.

Interesting Letter From an Old Portsmouth Fireman.

To the Editor—

Dear Sir:—I read in the Portsmouth paper of October 15, 1890 a communication from J. S. Darnell, who was chief engineer at the time of the great fire in Boston in 1872, asking for the names of the firemen of the city of Portsmouth who participated, so far as it can be done, so that an organization could be effected from all now living who went from other places to assist the Boston firemen. The letter was directed to chief of the Portsmouth fire department, John D. Randall.

As it is twenty-eight years ago that it happened there are many who were there at that time who are numbered with the dead, and I thought perhaps it might be interesting to the firemen of today and others to get some information of that event. It was on a Saturday night, November 9th, 1872, at eleven o'clock I was aroused from sleep by a loud rattle at my door. Getting up and raising the window I inquired what was wanted. A voice below informed me that there was a great fire in Boston, and that Mayor Marvin and Chief Engineer Marston were over at the city rooms, and wanted me to come right over, as they wanted to make arrangements to send No. 3 steamer, I being her engineer at that time, and George Jones the fireman. In less than five minutes I was there, and they told me what wanted, which was to go to the engine house and get her ready to go to Boston as quick as possible; that they would have an alarm of fire sounded, and would station a person at each house and hold the company there till the chief came and selected the men he wanted to send with No. 5 company.

At that time the horses were laid up with the epidemic, and we had to use strap ropes, with which the steamer was equipped. Everything was ready, and we went to Dover street and fastened the engine on a platform car, and with locomotive, platform car and one passenger car, with 60 men, we started, Samuel Hawkes being engineer of the locomotive, and I assure you we went quick. I rode on the platform car to see that the fastenings did not get loose, with fireman Jones with me part of the time. As we neared the city the flames could be seen very plainly, and the light of it could be seen in the horizon when we started. I do not remember the hour we arrived, but when we did, trains did not stop, under our feet, for we soon got the steamer and hose cart off the platform car, and started for the fire. Alighting one of Boston's assistant engineers, he directed us to locate at a reservoir in front of the Shawmut house. There was one engine there, but she gave out, and we worked there until we had orders to go to Court square and await further orders. We were then ordered to go to a reservoir in front of the Old South Church. It had not been used for a long time, but we finally got to work and while there the church people took fire from flying embers, and we put it out, otherwise the church might have burned. But the fire did not get by the church, but continued down Milk street. On the corner opposite was the Transcript office, which burned, and the whole inside fell to the cellar, leaving the walls standing, which were seven stories high. Later on a request was made to Chief Marston to have No. 3 put a stream over that building to show what firemen could do, as we were given that honor by some of the Boston firemen because we did not appear in firemen's uniform, for we did not stop to don one. Chief Marston gave orders to run steam up to 100 pounds pressure, and not exceed that, and fireman Jones kept it at that pressure during the trial, and then they saw what firemen could do, for we sent a stream far over that building, and when we shut off steam a shower of cheers came from the building opposite, accompanied with a shower of old beaver hats, with which the ladies adorned themselves, to the amusement of lookers-on. It was at first thought to keep us over Sunday night, but Chief Darnell thought as the fire was under good control he could spare us, so we might return to our homes, and after we had our photographs taken in a body, with the engine, which is now in No. 3 engine house, we then started to a hotel, where we were given a good dinner, and then left for the depot to go home. It took quite a while to get all ready, and at nine o'clock Sunday evening we entered the depot in Portsmouth, a tired but well pleased set of firemen. I could tell of many incidents that happened but it would trespass on space too much.

As regards the names of those living I am unable to state at this time, but I can name a few who were there, and say at this time that the idea of such an association is a grand one, and I hope it may succeed, although I am so situated as to become only an honorary member.

Mayor T. E. O. Marvin, Stephen L. Marston, chief engineer (deceased), Asst. Engineer Francis W. Ham, Foreman Ira C. Seymour, Charles H. Poole, Fireman (now steam engineer), George N. Jones of No. 3, and myself. And here I would suggest to Chief Randall to call a meeting at some engine house by advertising such for all persons to be present who went to the Boston fire in 1872 at the call for help at that time.

Hoping at some convenient time you will publish the account of that memorable event, I remain,

Yours truly,

CHARLES MANENT.

U. S. MAY GIVE AWAY 30,000,000 Acres for Homesteads

Each and Pinedale tells us that measures looking to giving the states some 30,000,000 acres of public lands are pending and that there is good chance that some of these will pass, now or in some future session. There are also pending various measures to permit homesteads of acres up to 320 and even 640 acres to be taken up, in the remaining public lands, on the theory that the 160-acre homestead is too small, in semi-arid regions, to be a working industrial unit.

"People who have areas of rolling land," we read, "and taking up a homestead, after the fashion of our forefathers and grandfathers, in the decades after the Civil War, should keep their eyes on legislation looking to giving away vast areas of the public domain. A long list of bills have been introduced, and some favorably reported, giving to the states great areas of the public lands, to be disposed of by them to raise funds for road-building, education, and other purposes. The Western States are making determined efforts to get great areas of the Government's lands turned over to them, and not a few public men from states which contain no public lands are inclined to favor the scheme. They think the states on the whole know better how to get the best development of their lands than Washington does."

ASTONISHING EXPORT RECORD FOR FEBRUARY

Washington, April 2.—American exports for February reached a total of $409,536,535 according to an announcement made today by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, of the Department of Commerce. This is the highest point ever reached by the export trade in this country and exceeds the high mark for December, 1915, by $50,000,000. It exceeds the total for January by $33,000,000. The decline in January had been taken in some quarters to mean that the record figure for December had marked the high tide in the flow of American exports. The total exports for the first eight months of the fiscal year 1916 are $2,656,301,670, and it now seems probable that the exports for the whole fiscal year will reach $1,000,000,000.

February imports also set a new high record, being valued at $193,935,

CONFESSES TO MURDER OF NEW BEDFORD WOMAN

New Bedford, Mass., April 2.—After riding two miles on a street car and falling in a state of collapse, Peter J. Hatrillon was taken to the police station tonight and confessed to having fired three shots from a revolver into Mrs. Eliza Jeffrey in a room of a hotel here on Saturday night in a quarrel over money. The confessed murderer has a bullet in his left lung which was self-inflicted after he had killed the woman.

Mrs. Jeffrey, 31, of Fall River, was slain Saturday in a room of the hotel and her body dragged down a flight of stairs and hidden in a bathroom, to be found an hour after by the proprietor of the hotel. Mystery surrounded the shooting of the woman, whose husband Joseph Jeffrey, was refused a divorce last week in the Bristol county Superior Court.

Heard Shots

Although the police closed the Hotel Stag, in which the murder occurred, and questioned inmates of every room and the cafe, they discovered no clue as to the assailant of the woman. A dragnet through the tenement district also disclosed nothing, and at midnight the police declared the murder a mystery to them.

Body Still Warm.

Thomas Potter, proprietor of the hotel, went to the third floor at 8 o'clock in a bathroom he found the body of Mrs. Jeffrey stretched on the floor. It was still warm. There were three bullet holes, one behind the left shoulder, another through the abdomen and a third just below the heart.

Medical Examiner Harry de M. Hough, after a cursory examination of the body and premises, declared the murder occurred in a room on the fourth floor, believed to have been temporary quarters of the woman. The body was dragged down a flight of stairs by the murdered and carefully stretched out on the floor of the bathroom.

Jeffrey brought suit for divorce against his pretty young wife, alleging among other things that she had been frequently seen drinking with men in the Stag hotel and other cafes of the city.

Judge Jeffrey denied the plea for a divorce on the grounds that insufficient evidence had been produced, but ordered that a stenographic copy of the testimony regarding the Stag Hotel be sent to the city license commissioners for attention.

Jeffrey's Little Known

Little is known in New Bedford of the antecedents of the Jeffreys. Mrs. Jeffrey came to this city several months ago, and although not employed, apparently had much money. No one knew of her divorce charge until the case came up for trial Wednesday.

The persons interviewed by detectives heard no screams or sounds of scuffling, and the woman's clothing gave no evidence that she struggled to save her life. The room was also in good order.

The Jeffreys have been married several years and have a son 3 years old, believed to be living with Mrs. Jeffrey's mothers at 247 Ferry street, Fall River.

Upon its seventh month this week, the current attraction, Charles Pillingham's pageant of charm, novelty and grandeur, "The Ugly Heavens," seems always new to those who go a second time. The new skating feature introduced by Charles and the Berlin skaters in "Flirting at St. Moritz," is even more sensational than the programme with which she was introduced to New York. The musical program by Sousa's Band in the Tower of Jewels scene is changed regularly each week and many other innovations are provided at regular intervals. April promises to be another record month as excursions are planned from many distant points and seats are now selling fast for Easter holidays.

DEAN GOLDHWAITE TO ADDRESS CIVIC ASSOCIATION

An address before the Civic Association, which is open to the general public, will be delivered this evening in the library of the Portsmouth High School at 8 o'clock, by Dean Goldhwaite of New Hampshire College. DON'T BURN UP YOUR MONEY THIS WAY

WHY spend so much money on coal when you can keep your home warm and cozy with a Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater and Socony Kerosene Oil?

You can keep a room warm nine hours on a gallon of Socony Kerosene. You can take the Perfection Heater wherever you want it.

You have no coal to shovel, no ashes, no wood to split.

And Socony is equally good, equally inexpensive, used in lamps and in your oil cook stove.

But be sure you get Socony—the pure, smokeless kerosene, so good that the Standard Oil Company has given its own name to it—So-CON-y.

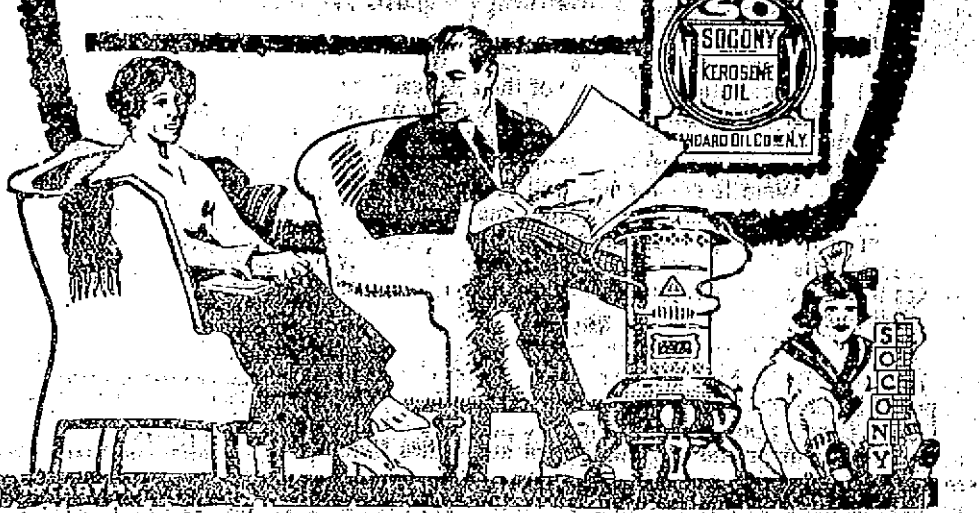

Look for the Socony sign at the grocer's.

TALKS WITH SCREEN-STRUCK GIRLS

Series Two
(By Beatriz Michelena)
No. 1.
(Copyrighted January, 1916, by Beatriz Michelena.)

No. 2
I am receiving a surprisingly large number of letters from "Screen Struck" girls, whose ages range from twelve to sixteen years, and they are all impatient.—Oh! so impatient to become screen stars.

"What shall we do?" they all ask in one breath, and I am answering just as fast as a limited leisure will permit me. At that, however, I am having a lively time of it trying to keep up with them, and so, for the benefit of those who have written and I have not yet had time to answer, and of those, myself, who have not written but are intending to, I will set it down here in the most emphatic type the editor will allow me, "CONTINUE IN SCHOOL."

I know, just as well as if I were right on hand to hear and see, that this advice will be received in many quarters with petulant stampings of the foot. It has none of the roseate coloring, nor high lights of romance that we are wont to associate with motion picture acting. It is, indeed, very commonplace sort of advice, and yet it is the best I shall ever be able to give. Sometimes I offer my advice with misgivings and reservation, but in this "Continue in School," addressed to my younger "Screen Struck" friends, I am absolutely sure and unhesitating.

A big success in motion pictures, calls for a very broad understanding of things and life,—of books and people, and a great many different customs and practices all over the world. The place to get the first beginnings of this knowledge is in the school room. If you lay such a foundation now, you will find matters a great deal easier for you later on.

Laying foundations, I know, is not always the most "enthralling kind of work," but it is often the most necessary. I am really very much interested in my "Screen Struck Girls," and most of all, perhaps, in my younger ones. That is why I am hoping so much that, for their own sakes, they will take my advice and continue in school.

The Best Advertising.

A resident of one of the prosperous cities in the eastern part of the country in a communication to one of the newspapers published in that city registers a vigorous protest against the advertising methods of a certain business man. This man, according to the writer, stuffs mail boxes with handbills and circulars and also throws his printed matter into hallways and litters front stairs with it. So profuse is the distribution of this advertising matter that it constitutes a nuisance to people who object to the necessity of cleaning their mail boxes and premises every few days, and the writer of the communication voices his objection in no uncertain terms.

And without doubt his protest will be echoed by many in his city and other cities, for the practice of advertising in the manner mentioned is not confined to any one community, though it is by no means so common as it used to be. Most business men have learned that this method of advertising, while apparently inexpensive, is one of the most costly because of the relatively small returns. It does not yield results proportionate to the cost, and the majority of advertisers long since learned that the place for their business announcements is in the columns of the newspapers, where they will be read with interest and care and produce the results they are designed to produce.

There was a time when handbills and dodgers were thrown promiscuously about the streets, but in most cities there are now regulations against this practice. It is still permissible to distribute advertising matter in other ways, but the superiority of the newspaper for advertising purposes has become so apparent that no up-to-date business man now wastes his time and money in scattering printed matter about the streets or forcing it into mail boxes and houses.

Newspaper advertising has a double value. It is not only instructive, but it is entertaining. Some of the best reading is to be found in the advertising columns of the daily papers, and the business man who expects to keep himself and his business before the public must necessarily be represented in those columns. Were it not for this well established fact it might be necessary to take more vigorous measures for the suppression of the "dodger" nuisance. As it is, the evil bids fair to correct itself. In advertising as in other things live business men want the best, and this they obtain in the columns of the newspapers.

It is reported that there are more than 40,000 children in the public schools of New York city who are suffering from the lack of proper nourishment. This is a painful statement, and in some manner the city and school authorities should see that such a condition is brought to an end. There ought not to be a hungry child in any country that exports food stuffs in such quantities as they are sent out of the United States.

An exchange says that Maine is falling behind in the production of statesmen. It enumerates a list of exceptionally able sons of the Pine Tree state who made their mark and left an impress upon the country, and points to the fact that few heavyweights are coming from Maine just now. Can it be that prohibition is failing to improve the race in proportion to the claims for it? Or do they really have prohibition in Maine?

The centennial anniversary of the founding of the American Bible Society will be celebrated in May in New York, where the society was organized May 13, 1816. The event will be of interest throughout the world, and all of the foreign Bible societies will be represented at the celebration. May 7 will be Bible Sunday in the churches of the country and there will be appropriate observances in all of the foreign mission fields.

The recent pile-up of three passenger trains in a single wreck in Ohio revives the call for an automatic train stop. If this is a practical device it should be brought into use at once, but there will never be an entire prevention of accidents, which are an inevitable part of the great scheme of life and human activity. Nevertheless no stone should be left unturned to reduce their number to the lowest possible terms.

The voice of the robin is heard in the land, and there is no sound or sign of spring that is more welcome, especially after such a winter as that which has just ended.

Another "election" has been held in Sing Sing prison, and the victorious party won.

CURRENT OPINION

War Will Not Bring Wholesale Commercial Disaster.

The whole world is now considering tariff problems, the Europeans to get money to pay interest on their war loans and the United States to shut out products of foreign industry that it expects will come into sharp competition with its own manufactures so soon as the war is over.

I think it will be a mistake on both sides of the water to raise tariffs indiscriminately. The situation is coming to this: The United States is prospering as the only big nation not at war. She is piling up gold and credits against Europe, her customer. As a result she will have too much money soon, so much she won't know what to do with it. On the other hand, Europe's energies and money are going into the war.

When she gets rid of the war, which I believe will be within a year, these energies will have to be turned back into business.

I do not look for any wholesale commercial disaster in Europe such as the south met after the civil war. I do not look even for a devastated country like Belgium to be permanently ruined. It is an industrial country, and its losses will be made up within a remarkably brief period.—By George B. Page, Banker and Financier in Rome.

FIND BODY OF BABY

Dead Girl Child Picked Up in Gutter at Rochester.

Rochester, April 3.—The body of a dead girl baby wrapped in a blue skirt and newspapers was found on Sunday afternoon in the gutter on Washington street, a mile and a half from the city proper by James Coy and Carlton Young, the six-year-old grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bennett of Washington street, while taking a stroll. The kid took the package to his grandmother, who on opening it was given a bad scare.

City Marshal Charles M. Cook was notified and at once removed the body to the police station. An autopsy was performed by Medical Referee Walter J. Roberts, assisted by Dr. Forrest L. Kory in the former's office. It showed that the birth was premature by two months and that the child lived but a short time, no marks of violence being found. Sheriff Ernest S. Young and County Solicitor Albert P. Sherry of Dover are here tonight investigating. The body was removed to the undertaking rooms of H. M. Edgerly.

KITTERY

Miss Elsie Wood and Adelle Spiny of South Eliot were visitors in town on Sunday afternoon.

Maudie Duncan of Lowell, Mass., passed the week-end with her father, Edwin A. Duncan of Williams avenue. Many from here attended the masquerade ball at Eliot on Saturday evening.

Harvey Grant on Saturday finished moving his family from Government street into their newly erected bungalow on Olds avenue.

Lemuel Craig of York Village was the guest of friends in town on Sunday.

The Philanthropic Club will meet on Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Isabelle Goughlin, Rogers road, at which time the "Earn a Quarter" social will be held. All members are urged to be present.

Harry Gerrish passed the week-end at his home in Lynn, Mass. Clarence Masterman of Wilton, Me., passed the week-end in town with his brother, B. D. Masterman.

On April 19 the district Sunday School convention will be held at the Government Street Methodist church, afternoon and evening. A fine program has been arranged for presentation at that time.

Dress rehearsals are now in order for the play "The Time of His Life," which the Scholars of Triad Academy are to present at Academy hall on Friday evening.

Messrs. E. E. and Clarence Masterman were visitors in Eliot on Sunday afternoon, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Drake.

Mrs. Warren Roberts of North Ber-

Ernest B. Grace of Kittery Point, in the Kittery court, Saturday afternoon, was found guilty of an assault on his wife, Mary Grace, at their home on Friday evening. The session was a long one, and the troubles of the family were gone over in considerable detail. The case was prosecuted by Samuel W. Emery, Esq., of Portsmouth, and Grace was represented by Arthur E. Sewall, Esq., also of Portsmouth. A fine of $5 and costs was imposed by Judge Shaw, and an appeal entered. Judge Shaw stated in court that he thought the case was more than a matter of family quarrels, as it was evident the troubles of the couple had become considerable of a scandal and annoyance to the people in that vicinity, but took into consideration the fact that Grace had two small children, the future of whom would be doubtful if they were deprived of immediate support if Grace was sent to jail. The court indicated that if the disturbances continued more serious consequences might result for all concerned in the disorder. Deputy Sheriff Roberts of Kittery Point and a relative of Grace furnished sureties for the respondent.

At the regular meeting of Riverside Lodge, No. 72, I. O. O. F., to be held this evening, there will be initiation of three candidates and at the close of the lodge a buffet lunch will be served. All members of the initiatory degree staff are requested to be present. A large attendance of the members is looked for.

The Fanny Work Club will meet on Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. I. J. Merry, Fort Hill.

LIFE SAVED BY PULMOTOR

Woman's Plan to Kill Dog Nearly Caused Her Own Death.

Manchester, April 3.—Mrs. Thomas Watts' novel method of dispatching a dog—by asphyxiation, with the gas stored in her home, 423 Maynard street on Saturday—came near to killing more than the dog and that the woman herself survives the experiment is due to the prompt action of City Physician Scott Patten and Officer George Lovejoy and the police department pulmotor. Not only was the woman herself overcome but her one-year-old son was also rendered unconscious, though he was quickly revived.

Shortly after noon, Mrs. Watts decided to get rid of her dog and placed the animal in the back kitchen where she turned on all the jets of the gas range, with the above results.

PEOPLES' OPINION

Beyond His Comprehension

Kittery is a great, much noted and model town and will continue to loom upon the map of the universe just as long as the great newspapers stand ready to chronicle the wonderful progressive tendency of our people. Many of our people are always contented. They preach the gospel of faith on all occasions; they have faith in whatever statements are made by our big public men. At the late town election, the statement was made by one of our prominent men that to expend $15,000.00 for a new school house would increase taxation, but to expend $15,000.00 to build a new road would not effect the present rate of taxes. I suppose we should continue right along and keep the faith. Some of the conclusions of some of our prominent men are beyond my comprehension. But as one man was heard to remark: "Seems 'kinder queer, but it must be so for he says so. Great is faith."

Says It's Politics

Editor: At a time when the Boston and Maine railroad is as free from politics as the Mississippi river is from mud, some dabbler in ward politics, tried, according to rumor, to turn over his ward in exchange for the continuation of the Greenland Electric line, but met with poor success, as justice is bound to prevail. This was purely a local matter and to continue pointing that line without patronage is similar to a laborer working for nothing.

FOLLOWING THE LEAD OF THE COMMISSION PLAN

By H. S. GILBERTSON

Executive Secretary, National Short Ballot Organization

II. Responsible Citizenship Through the Short Ballot

As we showed last time, it is essential to have the government hang together; every effective organization must do so or fail. Democracies included, internal unity though is not the whole thing. It takes responsibility on public officers as individuals and on the government as a whole. Effective democracy demands also responsible citizenship.

In the usual old style city government there is a mayor, a council, (sometimes of two chambers) and usually a financial officer, a legal officer and sometimes a city clerk, all of whom are elected by the people, just as is the state government, there is a governor, two houses of the legislature and numerous minor elective officers.

To perform the duties of citizenship under these conditions one has to bring his personal contribution of public opinion to bear at perhaps six different points at once—worse by far than a three-ring circus. If the council goes wrong it is perfectly possible for the citizens to say "that is too bad of course, but we have been so busy electing a mayor and keeping him straight that we have had no time for the council." And that indeed has been the usual tendency of American citizens to concentrate their thought and energy upon the conspicuous man at the top of the ticket or the head of the government, and let the rest go. The trouble has not always arisen because there are so many officers to be elected but because not all of them are of equal rank and importance in the control of the government.

In view of these facts it is not strange that the mayors, governors and presidents are usually strong representative men, while city councilmen, state legislators and congressmen are usually weighted down with numbers of cheap, unworthy politicians. The voters have concentrated their interest and their criticism on the head of the ticket.

Commission government remedied this condition by making every officer of practically equal rank. In New Jersey and Nebraska the commission government law wisely guards against confusing the voter by providing that only members of the council shall be elective and gives the council power to select its own presiding officer, who holds the title of mayor.

All this is but the practice of the Short Ballot principle, which is that "only those officers which are important enough to attract (and deserve) public examination" should be elective. But what officers are so important? Think the proposition out to its conclusion and the answer is inevitable: only those officers who determine public policies. Give these officers power over their subordinates and control the officers themselves and you are controlling all the acts of government at its very source.

The Short Ballot is not merely for cities. County governments are even more directly in need of consolidating the powers of their officers in a legislative body. They have actually done this in Los Angeles county and in the city and county of Denver. Los Angeles in 1912 cleared away from the ballot no less than thirteen minor offices, making them responsible to the popularly controlled board of supervisors. Denver vests the power of the equity in its elected city commissioners.

State governments, too, are getting re-adjusted. In California the process of clearing the underbrush began in 1911 when the legislature and people look from the ballot the railroad commission, the state printer and the clerk of the supreme court. Iowa has removed two and Ohio three officers in the same manner. If the constitutions were not in the way the movement would go faster.

But it is all in the direction of responsibility. Fit the task to the facts surrounding the individual voter as he is; and not as some people think he ought to be, and you have the most important condition of responsible citizenship.

GOVERNOR ASKED TO AID IN NATION-WIDE HUNT FOR SMALL BOY

Governor Spaulding has been asked to use every means in his power to aid in the search for four year old James Douglas from a farmhouse in Greely Pike county, Pa., March 12th, 1916. Search for the child by its parents, by the police and the children's societies all over the country has failed to locate the little boy, and a $500 reward offered for information leading to his recovery brought nothing but false clues.

The Glass family lives at 13 Linnell Place, Jersey City. Mr. Glass, employed by the Erie railroad went with his wife and three children to Greely, a hamlet of less than 100 residents, for his health. On the day of their arrival, Mr. Glass went to the village postoffice but a few hundred feet from the farm house where they stopped.

The little James was left alone in the house. Mrs. Glass was gone but a few minutes. On her return home James had disappeared.

CLEAN UP AND PAINT UP

Fellow Citizens: Let us get together and make this town of ours the most healthful and most inviting in the state. To this we must organize our forces; map out our plans and get to work. Other cities and towns in the United States are finding the efforts along these lines are bringing excellent results.

If we would have a healthful town we must clear our alleys, cellars, stables, sheds, yards, streets, alleys and vacant lots of trash, dirt, junk, filth, garbage, rags, cans, bottles and weeds. We must empty cisterns, cover manure heaps, drain barn lots, fill up mud holes and slums, fill-smelling ponds, open gutters, repair streets and barn rubbish.

Then we must use soap and scrub-brushes, brooms, rakes and shovels. We must throw lime freely about the alleys and stables. Why? Because disease germs and germ-carrying insects, especially flies and mosquitoes breed in filth and spread typhoid and consumption when they enter our living rooms, alight on our food or bite us while we sleep.

After the dirt is gone we must repair our buildings and fix our fences—and then lay on the paint! Paint everything that needs it inside and out, for paint is the best known preservative and its brightening influence will make the dull town in the world look like a city.

Of course when we buy paint and lime we put money into the pockets of the dealer and the dealer's pockets. But if we get sick and die, the doctor, druggist, undertaker, sexton and tombstone man take our coin. Most folks would sooner spend theirs on paint and lime—take your choice. Come on, now, folks! Let's call a meeting, form a Clean-Up and Paint-Up Club composed of men, women and children, and get on the job! The price is worth it—health and happiness.

PROF. BROWN GAVE INTERESTING LECTURE

Spoke Before the People of Kittery Sunday Afternoon on "Man the Masterful"—Arrangements Made to Continue These Public Forum Meetings

LECTURE.....bezotnspl
Prof. Henry W. Brown of Colby college, again invaded the town of Kittery on Sunday afternoon and gave an address in Wentworth hall on "Man the Masterful." A large and appreciative audience including many from this city greeted him with much applause. The meeting was opened with a solo by Mr. Albert Sprague and prayer by Captain J. W. Bench of the Salvation Army of this city. The speaker of the evening was introduced by William M. Porridge, who presided.

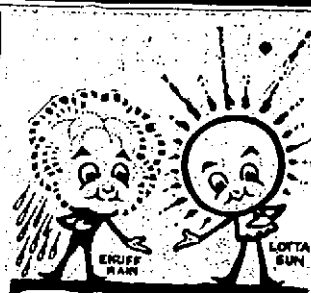

Dr. Brown said in part: "There was a time when man was not. There was no light, no emotion, no life. There was no earth, no moon, no sun. There was space, time, God—nothing more. Out of the silence and out of the darkness, Almighty God brought forth his new creation. Millions of years it took to complete our earth." He described how the world was formed, how vegetable and animal life were gradually evolved. Then there was a pause and God said, "Let us make man in our own image." Man, the masterful, stepped forth and the history of the world thereafter was to be but a record of his achievement. (How did man become supreme? He has become masterful because he has maintained his mastery. Man is superior to the brute because he has conserved and used those powers which have made him superior to them. Let us look back to the cave man. There were beasts more fleet of foot than he; animals with a more delicate sense of smell; others with better sight and keener hearing."

Mr. Brown said he was not sure that man has descended from the monkey. He said, "I never saw a monkey with a cigarette in his mouth or a whisky bottle on his hip." But he believed in evolution. "About three million years ago there was a creature on this earth that was neither ape nor man; but it is thought that this was the common ancestor of both man and ape. Some of the descendants of this creature are the apes of Central Africa; but in the temperate zone they became the ancestors even of our own superior Anglo-Saxon race."

"The Pygmies in Central Africa, today are not much superior to the apes in the trees. In Australia are to be found the humble bush-man. At the time of the Norman conquest, our own ancestors were hardly civilized, and when Caesar invaded Britain they were scarcely more than wild men. Illustrations on a black board, at this point, were rapidly drawn by the speaker. He spoke of his observations in Europe and described some of the fossils and remains of the more primitive man which he saw in the different museums. He drew a crayon picture of Pithecanthropus erectus whom he said, he looked upon with something like reverence, as being the creature that fought many of those great battles upon which our present civilization rests. This creature was able to stand erect. His front limbs were thereby set free as organs of apprehension for fight and for friendliness."

"This simple animal also gained possession of a true hand with a thumb easily opposable to the fingers. The hand is the most wonderful mechanism in the world. Some machines seem almost able to do everything but talk, but the human hand made all these machines. The power of articulate speech was the next acquisition. We are the only beings that can truly talk. In our speech we combine sounds to express the most complex ideas, thus making it possible to preserve records of the history and achievements of the past. Written as well as spoken speech has been the result of a long evolution from primitive grunts and growls and that development is still going on."

"Upon man's greater brain capacity rests his mental, moral, aesthetic and spiritual supremacy. The largest ape brain weighed 20 ounces, the smallest human brain weighed 30 ounces. Man is the only being that can really sin. It is our glory that we can sin; our shame that we do sin. We have a sense of the beautiful and this should be more carefully cultivated in our day. We also can trace causation to one Supreme Power and worship that Power as God. The man of the future is to be even grander and more noble in those attributes that distinguish him from the brutes."

At the close of the remarkable address the speaker received a hearty applause. Following the singing of two verses of "America," all that were interested in such meetings which are non-sectarian were asked to come to the front of the hall to discuss the possibility of having such, once a month. This after meeting resulted in a committee being appointed to canvass the town for a guaranteed fund to meet the expenses of such meetings. The committee appointed were: C. B. Waggait, George D. Boulter, Edgar Baker, Frank E. Donald, Fred Mabry.

These meetings are to be community affairs and entirely non-sectarian. They will be held in the form of a public forum.

REMOVED TO THE HOSPITAL AFTER RUN-A-WAY ACCIDENT

HENRY MARSHALL THROWN FROM CARRIAGE ON CONGRESS STREET SUNDAY AFTER NOON WHEN HORSE COLLIDED WITH POLE.

As the result of a run-a-way accident on Congress street, near the corner of Middle street, Sunday afternoon, Henry Marshall, employed on the Portsmouth navy yard, was taken to the Portsmouth hospital for treatment. He was suffering from a severe shaking up and several bruises, and it was found necessary to apply a dressing to one of his ears, which had been badly torn when he was thrown from the carriage. At midnight he was reported to be resting comfortably and it was thought that he would be allowed to leave sometime today.

Mr. Marshall, who has been handling horses practically all of his life, was driving down Congress at 1.30 when the horse became frightened and bolted. He ran the carriage into a pole in front of the library, one wheel coming off and throwing Mr. Marshall to the street, then continued down Congress street turning into Vaughan with part of the wagon dragging after him. The horse was stopped on Vaughan street and taken back to the stable. Mr. Marshall was attended by a physician and later removed to the hospital for further treatment.

TRAP GERMANS IN RUINS AROUND MALANCOURT

Allies Hold Strong Defensive Positions, Preventing Any Further German Advance--Three More Neutral Vessels Sunk

Paris, Sunday.—Unable to advance further in his attack on the village of Vaux, east of the Meuse, the German Crown Prince has shifted his aggressive again to the west of the river, and his heavy guns are once more bombarding the French positions between Malancourt and Avocourt. The next attempt of the Germans to advance is expected to come on the line west of the Meuse that seemingly being the only section in which the Germans have any chance of success.

Between Vaux and Fort Donnemont the French, holding strong defensive positions, have prevented any further advance. At Malancourt too the Crown Prince's men have not been able to debouch from the village ruins because of the intensive French fire, but the renewal of the German bombardment at that point would indicate another attempt of the Crown Prince to break through.

French officers who have come from the fighting front tell today of the terrible losses sustained by the Germans in capturing the ruins of Malancourt. The French, knowing that the position was untenable laid a trap for the German infantry. A battalion of French regiment, 1000 strong, was posted in the ruins with machine guns and when the Germans advanced in close order their lines were swept with fire. One attack after another was repulsed for hours. French officers estimated that it cost the Germans nearly a full division of soldiers to capture the ruins of the village.

London, Sunday.—The sinking of three other neutral vessels has been announced, making a total of six in the last twenty-four hours. At least one life was lost. Three of the vessels were reported sunk by U-boats.

The Norwegian bark Bell, 3,765 tons, from Portland, Oregon, to British ports was one of them. Her crew was brought in by the steamship City of Stockholm.

The Swedish steamship Hollandia, 1,156 tons, and the Norwegian steamship Gude, 1,115 tons, were also destroyed. The crews of both steamships were saved.

Russians Batter German Lines Mid Sea of Mud.

Petrograd, Sunday.—In spite of the weather conditions which have harassed the troops operating on the battle front from Riga to the Roumanian frontier, the Russian forces continue to advance against the Teuton invaders. The spring thaw has caused the rivers to overflow their banks while the marshes are almost impassable and the roads are seas of mud. With all these handicaps the Russian offensive has been prosecuted with determination. In several encounters the soldiers on both sides were compelled to wade in water up to their breasts. This was true especially of the patrols, who were far in advance of the general body of troops.

The activity of the Russians is attributed by the Germans as the result of the "enforced" requirements of a needy ally, probably referring to the Verdun situation, according to a report received here from military authorities.

While it has been predicted that Field Marshal von Hindenburg, the German commander, contemplates an offensive against the Russian line as soon as the weather conditions permit and the ground becomes firm enough for operations on a large scale, it is not believed that he will make any extensive movement until the status of the German lines along the western front in France and Belgium shall have been more firmly established. It is recognized that the Germans need a more substantial line in the Russian campaign, even for defensive purposes, and that Riga and Dvinsk are necessary to the success of their projects. However, it is doubted by military leaders here whether Germany can maintain activity on two fronts at the same time, even in view of the remarkable system of communications they have established. Even should all the German reservists be sent to the assistance of Field Marshal von Hindenburg to strengthen the ranks for a sudden blow, it is not thought that his forces would be strong enough to make the effort anything more than a gamble at long odds.

Italian Guns Block Raids by Enemy Aircraft.

Rome, Sunday.—Austrian attacks at various points along the Italian battle line have been repulsed by the Italian troops, although in a large measure the latest operations have been confined to artillery exchanges, according to the official statement issued by the Italian War Office today. The Austrians have recently renewed their attacks by means of aeroplanes, a fleet having flown over the Isarco zone, but so effectively was the fire of the Italian anti-aircraft guns that the hostile air fleet was compelled to remain at such a high altitude as to render their use ineffective. In the Udine region Austrian aircraft were used, but were driven back by the Italian air squadrons.

North of the Nago Saron Valley and in the vicinity of Mori and Rovereto the Austrian forces, supported by artillery, made several attacks, but were driven back by the Italian troops. Another body of Italian soldiers made a surprise attack on an Austrian redoubt before the Passo del Cavallo, inflicting heavy losses on the garrison besides capturing arms and ammunition.

The official statement issued by the Italian War Office today:

"There have been minor engagements to the north of the Nago Saron Valley and in the vicinity of Mori and Rovereto. Enemy detachments which tried to attack these positions with the support of their artillery were repulsed."

"Our batteries shelled enemy columns in the upper Cordevole and destroyed reinforcements in Tofana zone. One of our detachments made a surprise attack on a small Austrian redoubt before the Passo del Cavallo, inflicting losses on the garrison and capturing arms and ammunition."

"On the Isarco front artillery duels were fought. Enemy batteries bombarded with especially severe cross fire our positions along the heights northeast of Gorizia. Our guns dispersed an enemy column on the Uslas slopes of Monte Nera, damaged a bridge over the Tompaki Torrent, between Tolmino and the Santa Lucia station, and shelled enemy trenches at Fontanafredda."

OLD FRIENDS

Col. John W. Leavitt, one of the oldest in point of service, also one of the most efficient clerks in the supply department at the navy yard, was the recipient yesterday of a very pleasing letter from his old friend, Admiral Caperton, U. S. N. The letter contained many pleasing references of the friend ship which has existed for so many years between these two young fellows and in a most pleasing and fascinating way referred to the life long devotion of Mr. Leavitt to his country, both as a soldier in the Civil War, and as a trusted and efficient employee of the Government. Col. Leavitt, though not susceptible to flattery, felt much elated in hearing from his old friend and the pleasing references kept him in a happy frame of mind during the entire day. The Colonel passed the letter among his most intimate friends and all expressed pleasure as Mr. Leavitt is a great favorite among the employees of the store force.

Start Tomorrow and Keep It Up Every Morning

Get in the habit of drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast.

We're not here long, so let's make our stay agreeable. Let us live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, what a glorious condition to attain, and yet, how very easy it is, if one will only adopt the morning in-laid bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, heavy breath, acid stomach, can instead feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal, poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone whether ailing, sick or well should each morning, before breakfast drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels, the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal, before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast, the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, others who have salt skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of ludo bathing before breakfast.

It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast, the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, others who have salt skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of ludo bathing before breakfast.

Everyone whether ailing, sick or well should each morning, before breakfast drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels, the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal, before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. TAFT HAS ASKED BOARD OF TRADE TO SEND DELEGATES

LEAGUE TO ENFORCE PEACE TO MEET AT WASHINGTON THE LAST OF NEXT MONTH

Frederick M. Sise, Secretary of the Portsmouth Board of Trade, has received a communication from ex-President William H. Taft, asking that delegates be sent from here to the first annual national assemblage of the League to Enforce Peace, to be held in Washington on May 26 and 27. Mr. Taft is the President of the League.

With a view to having the country's business men well represented at the League's first annual conference, Mr. Taft has sent a like invitation to all of the commercial organizations which have a membership in the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The national Chamber of Commerce adopted through a referendum held recently, an international peace plan similar in character to that outlined in the platform of the League to Enforce Peace, which consists of the following four proposals:

1. An international court.

2. An international council of conciliation.

3. An agreement to use the joint armed and economic forces of all the signatory powers to compel a submission of international disputes to the court or council before beginning hostilities or declaring war.

4. An international code.

The point of difference between the Taft League plan and that of the national Chamber of Commerce, lies in the third proposal, the latter organization having failed to adopt by a two-thirds vote, the "joint armed force" clause. The idea of an economic boycott, however, was sustained.

Mr. Taft, in his letter received here, sums up the situation as follows:

"The commercial organizations constituting the Chamber of Commerce of the United States by their votes on Referendum Number Eleven expressed approval of the fundamental principle of the League to Enforce Peace. Indeed all the specific recommendations excepting one were carried by majorities in excess of two-thirds. Among the recommendations thus adopted was one favoring the organization of a system of commercial and financial non-intercourse, to be applied to a nation which entered the proposed league of nations and then went to war without first submitting a difference which arose to an agreed upon tribunal."

The one recommendation which just failed to receive the two-thirds majority necessary to commit the National Chamber to the proposition was that which provided for the use of concerted military force in the event that commercial non-intercourse proved insufficient to compel nations which have proceeded to war to desist from military operations and submit the questions at issue to an International Court or Council of Conciliation."

Whatever may be the ultimate decision of the League of Nations when instituted upon this point it would seem for present practical purposes the League to Enforce Peace may be looked upon as an agency through which your organization may work for the common program, embraced within the approval of the referendum vote.

It is from this point of view, therefore, that your organization is asked to send a delegation to the annual meeting of the League."

When the Chamber of Commerce referendum was submitted last November Mr. Taft wrote to the Presidents of local Commercial organizations as follows:

"The irreparable injury that would result to the whole world in case a way should not be found, at the close of the European conflict, to make war less threatening, and to render it less frequent, has induced a considerable number of leaders in the realms both of statesmanship and of business to combine in an effort to create sentiment in our own and other countries, in favor of the proposals that were put forward at the Philadelphia conference."

"The obvious and urgent need that led the committee of the Chamber to draw up its admirable report, and the Board of Directors to authorize its submission, is an eloquent argument in favor of a combined effort to do all which human ingenuity and devotion can, to prevent the recurrence of such a catastrophe as the world is now experiencing."

The League to Enforce Peace was organized at Philadelphia in Independence Hall, June 17, last year. Since then state branches have been formed, or are in process of formation in all of the states and District of Columbia. It has the support of a large number of men of prominence in political, educational and legal circles, in all parts of the country."

THE REAL CENTRAL AMERICA

Washington, D. C., March 2.—Central America as it really is, as a thriving and progressive section of our hemisphere, rich beyond measure in resources that have only been scratched at, is the subject of a handbook issued today by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Romantic soldiers of fortune and exciting revolutions have been entirely overlooked by the author, Mr. Gerard Harris, who, however, has furnished interesting reading in his stories of the agricultural, industrial, and commercial conditions that have brought about so many important changes in Central America in recent years.

The author is concerned largely with the prospects of American trade and American capital in this promising region, which actually covers more square miles from the combined area of the whole of New England, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and Ohio. He finds that we already sell about 60 per cent of the goods imported, but is strongly of the opinion that a much bigger percentage of the business should be done by Americans as a result of the present opportunities. To make the most of these opportunities, however, Mr. Harris declares it will be necessary to invest more American capital in the republics, to extend more liberal credits to improve banking facilities for export trade and to make more direct and personal efforts to the markets.

American trade with Guatemala is an example of what investments in a foreign country can do towards promoting trade with that country. American capital has been invested freely in the banana industry in Guatemala and practically all the supplies needed by the fruit companies and their employees have been imported from the United States. A very cordial feeling has been developed in Guatemala towards the United States. The desire for a closer commercial and social relationship between the two countries is evident. Many of the younger generation are being educated in the U. S. Instead of in Europe, as formerly, and the number of young people who speak English and have acquired an understanding of the American point of view is steadily increasing. The value of trade as a means of bringing nations closer socially and politically is too seldom taken into consideration in the opinion of Mr. Harris.

Among the many subjects discussed in connection with the methods to be employed in seeking Central American trade is that of language. Letters addressed to Central American dealers should be put into good Spanish by some person thoroughly educated in the language and familiar with the best forms of business correspondence. Technical terms and Americanisms should be avoided. The harm that some of our innocent Americans can do abroad is well illustrated by the brand of condensed milk which bore the notice, "Made at Our Plant." To the English-speaking people of British Honduras this meant that the milk was artificial and made at a plant. They would have nothing to do with it. The label was changed and the brand is now popular. Some Americans are probably more mystifying to the Spanish-speaking population.

BOX NINETEEN
SOUNDS ALARM
FOR REAL FIRE

CAUSE OF BLAZE IN MECHANIC STREET HOUSE A MYSTERY AS PROPERTY IS PRACTICALLY VACANT.

At 11:45 Sunday night an alarm from box 12, one of the two famous joke boxes, at the corner of Water and Court streets, called the department to a slight blaze in the one and a half story frame building of Mrs. Catherine Levy on Mechanic street. The department made short work of the fire and the "all-out" was sounded thirty minutes later. The cause of the fire is unknown as the building has not been used for a dwelling for some time, one part of it being used by William Rose as a work shop and store house for lobster pots. There are no stoves in any part of the house and Mr. Rose stated that he had not had any fires there this winter.

From appearances the fire started inside and worked its way up through to the roof, where most of the damage was done. The loss is estimated at about $75.00, partly covered by insurance.

At noon on Sunday Mrs. Levy went through the unoccupied part of the house with a number of boys from the neighborhood who wanted to hire it as a club house. After the inspection they decided that it was not satisfactory and it is understood that Mrs. Levy locked the place up a few minutes later and as far as could be learned, it had not been visited since. Mrs. Levy was out of town for the night but her daughter stated that the only key to the place was at home and that none had taken it away since her mother brought it back after showing the boys through.

Had the wind been blowing from the east it is quite likely that the other houses on the street would have been burned as there is little distance between them.

MEET AFTER 60 YEARS IN SOLDIERS' HOME

HURLEY AND CROININ, NAVAL VETERANS OF CIVIL WAR,
CHUMS IN THIS CITY AS BOYS

Daniel Cronin, for 23 years a member of the National Soldiers' Home at Togus, Me., was surprised recently to learn that his old comrade and playmate, with whom he used to once make mud pies in the streets of this city, is now Governor of the State in which he has lived so long.

In his boyhood days, Gov. William F. Hurley lived at 28 1/2 State street, and Daniel Cronin lived at 27 State street. They went to the same school and had many wrestling bouts.

"I could throw him once in a while, but Hurley was too strong for me and I used to bite the dust most of the time," says Comrade Cronin. "Hurley had lots of muscle, and if I remember it right, he could stand up and hold off most any of the boys at the school. He was a vigorous kid, I tell you."

Not long ago Comrade Cronin met a man strange to him on the reservation. Cronin warned him "to get off the grounds."

The stranger told Cronin that he had charge of the reservation and all the buildings thereon and all the people therein.

"O, you're kidding me," said Cronin. "What are you talking about, anyway?"

The stranger suggested that they walk up to the Administration building. Here the stranger took off his hat and walked into the chief office in the front of the building and look his seat at the desk. Cronin stole out of the door for a moment into the next department and whispered to Capt. Edwin L. Clark, the adjutant of the Home, asking him who the man was.

"Why, that's Gov. Hurley, the head of the Home here," said Adj. Clark. Cronin rushed back into the Governor's room, grasped him by the hand, told him just who he was and where he came from and what they did as youngsters when they went to school, and there followed a period of reminiscences that was pleasing to both. It was the first time they had seen each other for 60 years.

Both served in the navy. Gov. Hurley is 70 years and 6 months of age and Cronin is 74.

ETHICAL CULTURE SOCIETY TO CELEBRATE

New York, April 1.—The announcement of the plans for the nine day congress which is to be held in New York from May 11 to 23 in celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the Society for Ethical Culture has awakened wide spread enthusiasm among the adherents of the movement all over the country.

Delegates from Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland, Washington, Wilmington, and Baltimore have arranged to be at the meeting of the national organization at the headquarters of the New York society and to take part in the conferences.

The Chicago branch has appointed a special committee of business men to bring before the congress suggestions as to possible methods of bringing about a better mutual feeling between employers and employees. An entire afternoon will be devoted to the discussion of problems in connection with the relation of ethics to industry formulated to bring about active cooperation.

operation between capitalists, labor-leaders and industrial committee of the society.

Women have been active workers in the movement since the founding of the first society and the women's conference of the New York branch has arranged a program that will portray graphically the distinctive features of women's contribution to its development. Some of the questions to be discussed are: "What should be the distinctive note in college women's education? What is the right conception of motherhood as a vocation? What should be the position of women in religion? What can the women of the Ethical Movement do?"

The Women's Conference has also formed a special hospitality committee whose members will arrange for the entertainment of the out of town delegates. Many hostesses have offered to receive these as guests during the anniversary period. There will be two public dinners, a luncheon, a dance in connection with the conference to which all delegates are invited and opportunities for visiting the various points of interest in and about Greater New York under expert guidance is provided for.

A belief in the value of the study of the festival as an important factor in education has for years been a marked feature of the Ethical Culture school maintained by the New York society and one day will be given to exhibitions and lectures in connection with this work and to the performance of a Shakespearean play by the children.

POLICE NEWS.

Forty minutes after Patrolman McLean started his first night's work on the Portsmouth Police Department Saturday evening, he walked into the station with one James Gaudes, and had him book on the blotter as a drunk. James was taken from a house on McDougall street where it was alleged he had been creating more or less of a rough house. James is in a disagreeable position as he has a sixty days' sentence staring him in the face for some little trouble he was mixed up in over a pound of pork chops a week ago Saturday in a local butcher shop.

Gaudes was arrested on Saturday, March 26, on a warrant and was fined $10.00 and costs and given a sixty-day sentence in the house of correction, which was suspended. When he talks to Judge Gupitli this morning in the Municipal Court it is considered a little more than likely that he will be given a chance to "train his fruit" and help out with the spring ploughing at the county farm for a period of eight weeks.

Registered on the blotter for Saturday's arrests were six drunks and three lodgers. At midnight Sunday the names of two drunks appeared on the register.

STAR ISLAND FUND IS COMPLETE

(From the Boston Evening Transcript)

With the coming of the first day of April there is joy in the hearts of all "Shouters," for the success of the project to buy Star Island in the Isles of Shapsh is assured. The $40,000 necessary for the plan was all raised even before the expiration of the time limit.

The twentieth summer of Unitarian meetings will come with a new glow in the atmosphere because of the ownership of the island. Through all the gladness of past years there has been the haunting apprehension that the property would change hands and be diverted to such purposes that the religious meetings would be hopeless. Now the future is guaranteed.

More than this, the achievement of the purchase means a new method of spiritual construction. Always before the plans have been on short legs—simply from year to year. Always it was "We shall do this—if the meeting are held at all." The "if" always lying on the horizon of the future. Now the Star Island Corporation can plan definitely for the whole summer and make progressive plans for many years. Also the whole property is to be renovated to be exactly adapted to these purposes.

Heretofore the island has been primarily the site of a summer hotel. Now it will become entirely the home of a great spiritual adventure. Promptly on the assurance of the completion of the fund for purchase and reconstruction, the agents of the Star Island Corporation acted. Yesterday, the last day of March, Mr. Isaac Sprague, the treasurer, and Clarence A. Bunker, Esq., attorney for the corporation, went to Portsmouth to close the deal. They also chartered a boat and went out to the island to take possession of the property and plan with the architect, Mr. Arthur G. Everett, for reconstruction of existing buildings and the erection of new ones.

The money now raised is not the final goal. Groups of cottages are to be built in order to increase the capacity of the accommodations. Indeed, the Congregationalists are already suggesting the choice of such an object for funds. The Unitarians have raised over $40,000 so far, and the Congregationalists over $2000 in addition. If this suggestion is carried out the latter fund will be designated for a specific thing in the general plan. The future will see, through this interdenominational cooperation, added achievements in this unique spiritual project.

JOKING EVEN IN FACE OF DEATH

Officer Made Farce Out of Norman's Land Patrol.

A sample of that saving sense of humor which has made it possible to go through all sorts of hardships into positions of extreme danger and still keep up the spirits of the men in the trenches is shown in a diary of an officer, an extract of which was recently printed in the 5th Gloucester Gazette, British Expeditionary Force, a newspaper printed in the trenches "somewhere in France."

In the diary the officers transforms grim adventures into the form of the farce, which brought many a laugh from the fellows standing in mud and snow, watching for a dash by the enemy. The diary of the patrol follows:

"6 p. m.—Waked from sound sleep.

"6.15 p. m.—Met company commander. Told him I did not believe any Germans opposite. Company commander said in that case I was just the man he wanted, and would I cross at 8.30 p. m. and find out?

"6.30 p. m.—Said I would think about it.

"6.32 p. m.—Went to think about it in secluded spot.

"6.30 p. m.—Still thinking in secluded spot.

"7 p. m.—Went to tell off patrol.

"7.15 p. m.—Patrol went to think it over in secluded spot (same one).

"7.25 p. m.—Observed with telescope four Germans in trench opposite. Seemed to be large cheerful men.

"7.35 p. m.—Pretended to eat hearty dinner. Asked company commander whether patrol was necessary in view of four Germans seen by me. Company commander said four Germans, probably caretaker, wife and two children looking up for the night. Dislike company commander.

"8.40 p. m.—Notice one of patrol writing on black-edged notepaper. Said it was his last will and testament and would I censor it, as he wished to send it off tonight.

"8.45 p. m.—Discussed weapons with patrol. Company commander lent me his automatic and examined mechanism.

"9.05 p. m.—Let off automatic accidentally. Severely frightened company commander. Felt happier.

"9.15 p. m.—Found patrol whistling "Dead March" in unison. Tell patrol we will wait a bit.

"9.50 p. m.—Tell patrol I thought we would start.

"9.50 p. m.—Tell patrol we ought to start.

"10 p. m.—Tell patrol we must start.

"10.05 p. m.—Company commander came and asked why we hadn't started.

"10.10 p. m.—Patrol started. Night very dark.

(PASTOR RUSSELL)

New York City, April 2.—Pastor Russell delivered a very interesting address at the New York City Temple, W. 63rd St., near Broadway, this evening. His text was, "For whom He did foreknow He also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of His Son, that He might be the First-born among many brethren."—Romans 8:29.

The Pastor began by showing that God has had a special purpose in everything which He has made, and has in view a blessing for all His creatures. Jehovah is a great Architect, whose plans and specifications were all drawn up before our earth came into existence. He has not been working in a haphazard manner, doubtful of the outcome of His purposes, as once we supposed in our ignorance and blindness. Many of us once thought that the Devil had come into competition with the Almighty, and was so opposing His plans that God did not know just what to do, but tried one plan after another. We supposed that somehow God would finally get His few children out of Satan's clutches, but that all the rest of mankind would be tortured eternally in a place which we called Hell.

All Bible students now see that such ideas are very crude and confused, especially in the light of the Scripture which says that God had foreknown all things from the foundation of the world. We are thankful indeed that this darkness is scattered, and that we can now see why God has permitted evil, and that He will ultimately overrule all things for the good of both Church and world.—Acts 15:18; Ephesians 1:3-6; Isaiah 65:8-11.

Second Adam and Eve, and Their Work.

Then the speaker briefly outlined the Divine Plan. God predetermined first the creation of angels of various ranks and then the creation of man; and all this through the Logos, our Lord Jesus Christ in His pre-existent state, as the Father's Agent. (John 1:1-3.) God foreknew that man would fall into sin. He knew that at the proper time He would send the Logos, His well-beloved Son, to redeem man. He also foreknew that He would issue a special Call for a Church class to be associated with our Lord as His Bride, for the judging, instructing and restoring of the Adamic race.

Thus the Bible presents a beautiful picture—a Second Adam, our Lord Jesus in His highly exalted condition, the reward of His obedience unto death; and a Second Eve, the glorified Church. These are to be the new Father and Mother of the race. As the mother nourishes the life generated by the father, so the glorified Church will care for and nourish the human family, who will then be regenerated, recreated, by our Lord Jesus Christ. Step by step the Bride of the Lamb will raise the ransomed and redeemed race to human perfection—whosoever will.—1 Corinthians 15:21, 22, 45-47; John 6:29, 30; Revelation 22:17.

The Bible Predestination.

At one time the word predestination was supposed to signify that God had elected the Church to glory and the remainder of mankind to eternal misery. A careful examination of the subject reveals no such thought in the Bible. Our text clearly states that God has predestinated that the Church be individually conformed to the image of His dear Son—become character-likenesses of our Lord. No one will be a member of the glorified Church who does not reach this standard. Before the foundation of the world God foreknew the Church class, one hundred and forty-four thousand in number, predestined to be character-likenesses of His Son.

To attain this standard requires time. Our Lord Jesus Himself had to demonstrate His loyalty to the Father; and so must the Church class. In their case, however, this loyalty is demonstrated in their wills, their minds, their hearts, and manifested in their works to the best of their ability; for their bodies being more or less weakened by the hereditary taint of sin, they cannot do perfectly, as did our Lord. But their unavoidable imperfections of flesh are covered by the merit of the Savior.

In order to develop this character, TRIALS are necessary. These may be summed up under two heads; faith and loyalty. Faith in our Lord Jesus is one of the great tests—not merely a belief that He was the Son of God, but something very different. Faith in God's promises and providences is essential. Loyalty to God means loyalty to the principles of righteousness. It goes beyond the Golden Rule and on to love of God, of the brethren, of the world and even of our enemies.

'MY FATHER AND I'

Prof. Henry W. Brown of Colby Addressed Service at Middle St. Baptist Church.

Prof. Henry W. Brown of Colby College held the attention of a large and interested audience in the Middle St. Baptist church Sunday evening when he spoke at a service under the auspices of the Men's Class upon the subject, "My Father and I." The Men's chorus led the praise service. President Frederick Gardner of the Men's Class presided.

The speaker said, "We are more than the creatures of God; we are His offspring, soul of His soul, life of His life. Prayer is the effort of the child consciously to realize this filial relationship. For too many of us, however, prayer is mere petition. This is the lowest phase of worship. It springs from selfish motives. We should of course pray for things, but we should do more than this. We should also express thanksgiving, make confession, enjoy communion."

"Some objections have been raised to prayer. 'God, say some, will give us what we need, whether we ask for it or not.' This is true in the main. The rain falls upon the just and the unjust alike; but some bestowals cannot be blessings unless they are asked for. 'Lays cannot be forced upon a soul. Forgiveness rests upon repentance. The highest gifts of God are conditioned upon prayer. There has been an evolution along this line. We no longer pray for absurd things. Prayer has been rationalized."

"Some say prayer is a relic of superstition. Were this so the intelligence of the world would be turning away from the practice. As it is most of the leading minds, and the most advanced nations refuse to repudiate the privilege. Those who pray most are those who most firmly believe in prayer. Here is the test. Besides, the fact that the most primitive man, past and present, have prayed to the highest God they can conceive of is proof that the act of worship is inherent and not a matter of tradition or priestcraft. The instinct like that of love, and the appreciation of the beautiful has survived among the rational impulses of developing mind."

"Some say, 'we ask God to set aside his laws which are irrevocable; but a law is simply the way in which causation acts, not a thing in itself, and every law is subordinate to a higher one, which too operates in accordance with a determining will. I can lift a rock, melt ice or feel kindly toward my enemy."

"There are various ways in which God answers prayers. First, directly. How many times each of us has had the object of his prayer definitely granted. Secondly, by a flat refusal. Every prayer rests upon 'Thy will be done.' Many of our prayers are short sighted, unwise, and their answer would lead to our undoing. Thirdly, we are often led to withdraw our requests on account of a clearer or broader vision. Fourthly, God very often gives us something better than we had asked for. Fifthly, we are given determination and strength to go out and answer our own prayers. God helps those who help themselves. The privilege of prayer is never to be used as an excuse for laziness. Lastly, many conscientious hearts know what it is to trust all to God in faith believing. One can never over-estimate the subjective value of prayer. The truly devout soul needs no external proof of God as his Father, nor of the efficiency of prayer to him."
